YOU'RE INVITED TO HONEYCOMB SAVINGS DAYS

at all 3 offices of Quaker City Federal, June 27 through July 10th. Mrs. Violet Delmotte, who handles New Accounts at our East Whittier office, and Al Gunsten, Ass't Vice President and East Whittier Manager, are sure you'll enjoy our colorful display of delicious Sue Bee Honey. Be sure to pick up your Free copy of our "Honey Nuggets" Recipe Booklet, too, and more! See details on Pages 8-9.

NEW EMPLOYEES AT OUR MAIN OFFICE

are welcomed by Margaret Lawson, Ass't Secretary and Personnel Manager, on behalf of our entire Quaker City Federal family. May we introduce, from left, Jean Wolf, Secretary; Susie Reineman, Teller, and Terry Thrift, Management Trainee.

YOU'LL GET EVEN FASTER SERVICE

at our Main Office, now that we've installed a new system of serving you. Long time customer F. W. Boynton kids Jerry Thomas, Vice President-Secretary about "learning the ropes" but actually it's very simple. As you enter our cordoned off area you'll move swiftly to the head of the line and go immediately to the first teller opening. No more frustration from "being in the wrong line" at a busy teller window. As you can see, we're doing everything we can at Quaker City Federal to make sure you're given the VIP service you deserve!

For an exciting vacation this year

EXPLORE EXPO'74

A World's Fair full of beauty and fun.

If you haven't already made plans to do so, there's still plenty of time to visit and enjoy the dazzling World's Fair now in progress at Spokane, Washington, through October.

Built around the theme of "celebrating tomorrow's fresh new environment", the 100-acre Expo is fittingly located on 2 lovely islands and along the banks of the rushing Spokane River.

The quality of the pavilions and displays, the refreshing natural beauty of the fair site itself and the lush tranquility of the surrounding Pacific Northwest Region combine to make your visit a truly memorable one.

As might be expected, the United States Pavilion with its sweeping translucent canopy roof, dominates the fair's structures. The building, one of two which will remain after Expo closes, contains theatres and an environmental computer center surrounding a huge courtyard that has dramatic displays interspersed in a setting of trees, flowers and a sparkling trout stream.

Nations represented include Russia, Canada, Mexico, Taiwan, Japan, Australia, West Germany plus many other Latin American and European countries. Their displays explore ways each of them is approaching such ecological problems as population density, pollution control, natural resource management and other health and social interests.

A highlight of Expo is the famed Smithsonian Institution's regional version of its projected Bicentennial Festival. This constantly changing program spotlights representatives of American Indian tribes and national groups such as Scandinavians, Russians and Basques, who also contributed to the cultural heritage of the region. Visitors will have an opportunity to participate in some of the exhibitions and activities which include folk crafts such as weaving, carving, log rolling and folk dancing and singing. On display here also will be much of the Smithsonian's priceless collection of Northwest Indian art...never before seen outside the nation's capital.

You will also want to visit the unusual Washington State exhibit which features a film titled "About Time" which explores mankind's relationship to earth before, during and after the advent of technology. At times the film, which is projected on a huge screen and complemented with enormous side mirrors, seems to extend into infinity, completely engulfing viewers.

Industry also plays a vital role in the success of Expo, with many interesting displays relating to ecological concerns. General Electric is sponsoring daily musical programs which feature original material related to the environmental theme and include a combination of jazz, country and folk music. An outdoor theatre created by the Boeing Company, offers a scenic setting for concerts and theatrical presentations.

And there's more! Ballet, symphony orchestras, concert performers like Van Cliburn, Isaac Stern and Roberta Peters, popular performers Jack Benny and Victor Borge and other great family entertainment.

In addition to all this there are colorful boutiques and bazaars with unusual gifts on display from around the world and exotic restaurants offer an opportunity to enjoy authentic foreign fare.

Of course no fair is complete without an amusement area and Expo offers some special new rides the kids will always remember. And the entire family will enjoy the aerial skyway safaries for a sweeping view of the Fair and the cascading waterfalls of the Spokane River.

Yes, it's an inspiring and delight-filled experience, this Expo '74, that will give you a fresh new outlook on the human race and our environment. Whether you fly there, go by train and bus, car or camper, you'll see some spectacular natural beauty. Expectations are that over one-third of the Fair's visitors will be campers, taking advantage of the thousands of campsites available in the Spokane area and nearby outlying areas. The many lakes and rivers offer opportunities to get in some fishing or boating if you like. Within a day's drive you may wish to visit Grand Coulee Dam (the largest concrete structure in the world) that is just about 100 miles to the northwest, Glacier National Park in Montana or Lake Louise in Canada.

So take a few days of your vacation this year and leisurely explore the world...at Expo. Take a little longer and enjoy the beauty and hospitality of America's Pacific Northwest. ■

With your help there can be a public opening this fall celebrating...

THE RESTORATION OF THE BAILEY HOME

The Bailey House has come alive again...thanks to the financial contributions, donations of furnishings, many hours of historical research and volunteer labor necessary to restore this historic ranch house. Soon it will become a heritage museum that will belong to the people of Whittier and visitors to the city for generations to come.

The first step - saving the old ranch house from demolition - was spearheaded by the "Save the Bailey House Committee" and thousands of citizens responded to the challenge of raising funds for the purchase of Whittier's oldest residence. But before the property can be turned over to the city as a gift, major restoration is required and it is this necessary work that is currently being carried out by volunteers who have given hours and hours of their time to this exciting but arduous project.

Supervising the overall restoration is Carl Johansen who has given literally hundreds of hours of his time to the project. Already a sturdy new foundation has been laid and work is progressing on a new roof for the old ranch house which already has had a facelife with a new porch and steps.

Landscaping is also underway now that the major outside cleanup is completed and a donated sprinkling system will be installed to keep the lovely trees, shrubs and lawn a pleasant setting for the museum.

Of course, in addition to the exterior restoration work is continuing on the interior. Some of the stunning original wallpaper was discovered and is in the process of being reproduced. There have been donations of a bedroom set, china closet and other authentic furnishings from circa 1870 which will grace the historical home.

And so the restoration continues with the goal of opening to the public this fall. But the call is still out for "money and muscle." Cost of the roofing materials is over $2,000 and lumber, cement and other materials nudge the total needed to complete the project upwards towards $10,000. Fortunately, the labor that makes the restoration possible - both skilled and unskilled - is given freely by people whose deep interest in the Bailey House has made their hours of hard work a joy. Besides the fun of working alongside others who share a common bond of dedication, there is great pride in surveying the results...an important part of Whittier's heritage that has been rescued and preserved for all of the people of Whittier to enjoy.

Carl Johansen (lett), who is giving freely of his time in supervision of the Bailey House restoration, surveys the new foundation with D. W. Ferguson. The foundation was a major item in the restoration project.

Material for the new roof on the Bailey House is estimated to cost $2,000. D. W. Ferguson (left), President of Quaker City Federal Savings and a member of the "Save the Bailey House Committee" which is now spearheading the restoration, chats with Carl Johansen (on ladder) and D. H. Giles, who is doing the roofing.

The restoration of the Bailey House is a major contribution to the spirit of America's Bicentennial Celebration...emphasizing the deep regard this community has for its heritage. All of us can share in this community gift by the donation of our special talents and skills and by our monetary gifts that purchase the reconstruction materials.

You are invited to send your donation care of Quaker City Federal Savings at 7021 Greenleaf, 90608. Your tax deductible checks should be made out to "Whittier Heritage Association". It will be a pleasure to add your name to the roster of fellow citizens who have given money, time, furnishings or other special gifts toward the restoration of the Bailey House. ▪

A professional roofer, D. H. Giles is contributing his time and skill to put on the new roof at the ranch house.

Loaf and Invite Your Soul at Yosemite

"loaf and invite your soul" — Walt Whitman, "Song of Myself"

It is incomparable...a panorama of plunging canyons, sparkling glacial lakes and awesome granite walls thrusting one half mile skyward. It is the most beautiful national park in California, or perhaps in the entire nation. It is Yosemite, a giant wilderness, lying in the very heart of the Sierra Nevadas.

Yosemite Valley lies pressed between sheer rock walls and follows a seven-mile gorge carved by glaciers and the Merced River. Many spectacular waterfalls, including Bridalveil and Yosemite Falls, enchant visitors who come to gaze in wonder at this national heritage. And there are wondrous spots of silence and beauty, out-of-the-way campgrounds where one can heed the "call of the mountains," where time seems to stand still and there is peace. ■

Q-TALK

BY D. W. FERGUSON
President of Quaker City
Federal Savings

With so much emphasis nationally being placed on everything from inflation and the energy crisis to the continued threat to international peace, it's sometimes nice to put aside these menacing topics - if even for a moment - and think of the things that are still right about our world. Here in America especially we have so much to reflect upon that is good, and with Independence Day so close at hand it shouldn't be hard for us to remember that. Our precious freedom, while always in danger, is still ours to enjoy and defend. And with continued dedication to the principles that this great nation was founded upon, we have every right to expect that these freedoms will continue to be part of our American heritage. We're just old fashioned enough to believe that it's still important to stand up and cheer for America - especially now when America can use a little cheering!

Two Weeks With Play

Part of the summertime mystique for most of us is the promise of getting away for a week or two - or more. It's in that spirit that this issue of Locale suggests some vacation ideas that would take you out of our locale - let you refresh and renew your outlook from an ecological standpoint at Expo '74 in Spokane, Washington, or as the headline we borrowed from the poet Walt Whitman suggests "Loaf and Invite Your Soul" in Yosemite, or for that matter, in any of the natural wonders that literally surround us. Whatever you decide to do with your vacation this year, may we wish you a safe and renewing experience - be it thousands of miles away or hunkered down beside the barbecue in your back yard.

Then of course there's always next year's vacation to plan and dream about and that's where all of us at Quaker City Federal like to put in a plug for opening a Vacation Savings Account. Even if you already have a regular savings program here - try opening a special vacation account too! You'll find that with the extra interest added each quarter, it's one way you can help make next year's vacation a bigger and better one and the benefit of planning for and then experiencing a debt-free return home has its own special rewards too! Try it!

Honeycomb Savings Days

We hope none of you will miss stopping by any of our three offices to enjoy the honeycomb of surprises we have waiting for you during our June 27th through July 10th reinvestment period. It's a summertime extra we've arranged with the cooperation of the Sue Bee Honey people and the California Honey Advisory Board. We know you'll enjoy it...our way of proving once again "How Sweet It Is" to save at Quaker City Federal.
